Age of Freedom Janice Hulse 2021-09-24 Women in their professional careers always look forward. What's next? What lies ahead? Where will the path lead? Dynamic, professional women encounter many crossroads that are intermingled with career and personal choices; faced with different roads to follow, sometimes not knowing where that path will lead. In this age of freedom, the possibilities are remarkable. Relationships with the work-world are dynamic and will change. Discover the freedom to choose new paths, to leave some things behind and welcome what's ahead. The book is filled with stories, ideas and learnings. All are spoken from the heart. Some are entertaining, dramatic, humble, happy, or sad, yet all are perceptive. The insights are just as unique as the 650+ professional women from around the globe who contributed them. Explore how professional women embrace the age of freedom whether they are in the eye of the storm, tackling a new career, reinventing themselves working on their own terms, or expecting the unexpected. This book is unlike any other. It is not about retirement, career change, or winding down. It's about the intersections professional women encounter and the choices available. Most importantly, it's about being true to oneself.

James McNeill Whistler Margaret F. MacDonald 1995 Painter, etcher, draughtsman, lithographer, watercolourist, and author of critical essays and aphorisms, James McNeill Whistler had a tremendous influence on the art and aesthetics of his era. Born in Massachusetts in 1834, he settled in London when he was twenty-five years old and for the next four decades produced hundreds of highly acclaimed (and sometimes highly criticised) works. His prodigious output and proficiency, along with his eccentricities, polemics, and arguments with critics, won him wide recognition. This catalogue raisonne of Whistler's drawings, pastels and watercolours makes available many of his works that have never before been exhibited or published and vividly demonstrates the wide range of his art. His drawings reveal the everyday working out of his ideas and note the world as it passed by Whistler with vigour and humour. The pastels include sensitive portraits, vigorous studies of models in the studio, and detailed views of Venetian palaces. The watercolours, perhaps his finest works, catch the subtle colours of northern skies and ever-changing seascapes.

Hollywood War Films, 1937-1945 Michael S. Shull 2006-07-27 From 1937 through 1945, Hollywood produced over 1,000 films relating to the war. This enormous and exhaustive reference work first analyzes the war films as sociopolitical documents. Part one, entitled "The Crisis Abroad, 1937-1941," focuses on movies that reflected America's increasing uneasiness. Part two, "Waging War, 1942-1945," reveals that many movies made from 1942 through 1945 included at least some allusion to World War II.
