compare to other countries?

Sep 28, 2021 The more significant drop in U.S. life expectancy relative to other countries was driven in part by racial disparities in COVID-19 mortality. Life expectancy at birth decreased across racial and ethnic groups in the U.S. in 2020 based on provisional CDC data. However, life expectancy at birth decreased more for non-Hispanic Black people (-2.9 years) and Hispanic.
